

A terrace over the sea

<< This new seductress has exteriors displaying the light, sleek and elegant lines, large glazed side doors in the saloon and fold-down platforms that can create exclusive terraces above the sea

Ferretti is rewriting the history of yachts with its Custom Line 124' design, expertly created by Architect Gianni Zuccon. This new seductress has exteriors displaying the light, sleek and elegant lines, large glazed side doors in the saloon and fold-down platforms that can create exclusive terraces above the sea.

This new 124' comes with generous spaces like the cockpit and its large teak table seating 10-12 guests. The salon measures over 50 metres and the absence of supports ensures there is an uninterrupted view. Light dominates the interiors, flooding in through wide windows and the large glazed side doors, which enhance the feeling of space, creating the impression of unity between the interior and exterior. The doors can be fixed or allowed to open, depending on the layout chosen by the owner, and look onto the main deck walkway, the location on both sides of the electro-hydraulically operated fold-down platforms that form fully-fledged terraces, providing a unique and exclusive sea view.

The roomy owner's area lies forward, a very bright space – thanks to the wide broadside windows – is divided into a working zone with private head and sleeping area, plus a generous bathroom forward with separate services and double shower. The dominant theme here is shaped by the materials chosen by the owner.

There are four guest cabins on the lower deck—two VIP cabins aft with double bed and two twin cabins further forward, all with private bathrooms offering separate showers, lit by the wide hull windows, made without central posts. There is a sort of a lounge area on the lounge deck—a zone that is dedicated to relaxation.

Of course, as with all these yachts, customisation is possible, so that you, the owner are most at home (not at sea) with it. It comes with two layouts anyway, so take your pick.
